CATHEDRAL LIFE WEEKLY

Eighteenth Sunday after Trinity, 25 September 2016

Cantata Evensong

THE CHOICE of anthems at Evensong is usually linked to the readings or theme of the day, and sometimes a less specific, seasonal choice is made.

For this year's annual Cantata Evensong, cantata 5 Wo soll ich fliehen hin? (Where should I fly from here?) has been chosen: it was written in 1724 for the 19th Sunday after Trinity (this year on October 2).

In the text, a Christian asks consolation and mercy from Jesus, the different moods of each verse allowing for a variety of musical settings, mostly solos but framed with a chorus at the start and a simple hymn at the end. The service will be held in the Nave and we hope that many people will wish to join us for Evensong to take part in the service and hear a fine piece of choral music accompanied by a Baroque orchestra and in a liturgical setting.

Study Notes on the Sunday Gospel

Luke 16.19-end

Introduction & Context

No moral judgements are made directly on the “rich man” and Lazarus (v. 20), but they are implied: v. 30 infers that the rich man, and his brothers, have not repented of their sins, but “Lazarus” (v. 21) means God helps, so he has. Vv. 22-23 tell of the reversal of fates after death, in contemporary Jewish terms: Lazarus goes to a place of bliss, beside “Abraham”, but the rich man roasts in “Hades” (v. 23).

27-28, the rich man asks that his brothers be saved from the same fate. Abraham’s answer (v. 29) amounts to: God reveals himself and his will in the Old Testament, so the “brothers” (v. 28) have been warned of the fate that awaits them. In v. 31, in speaking of “someone rises from the dead”, Jesus is referring to his resurrection. Like Lazarus, those whom God helps will come into his presence but, like the rich man, the ungodly will suffer irreversible punishment. God has revealed his will through “Moses and the prophets” (v. 29); those who neglect it will suffer after death. In this case,

Once you are settled and are ready to go:

- Read the passage slowly and reflectively
- Note anything that particularly strikes you and refer to the notes if they are helpful
- Spend a few moments in quiet reflection
- If you are a group, share your reflections in pairs or as a whole group (remembering that each person will have different perspectives and views on the passage)
- Read the passage for a final time and give thanks to God for the gift of his holy word.

CAFA Conference Success

THE ANNUAL MEETING of Cathedral Administrators and Treasurers was hosted at Chelmsford Cathedral last week with more than 35 Cathedrals attending.

Delegates later took to social media to thank all those who had helped with the hosting of the event, commenting on the warm welcome they had received, the hospitality and refreshments and how beautiful the Cathedral had looked, particularly at the Gala Dinner held in the nave on the Wednesday evening.

Cathedral vs Mosque Cricket Match

LAST SUNDAY the Vice Dean captained the Cathedral cricket team in their first ever match against the Chelmsford Mosque.

Speaking about the occasion Vice Dean Ivor Moody said, “This cricket match was not just a game, it was an important landmark in interfaith relations between Islamic and Christian communities and in the work of the Mid-Essex Interfaith Forum to promote friendship and understanding between people of different cultures and faiths”.

Although the Cathedral were soundly beaten, it was an enjoyable afternoon well supported by Cathedral and Mosque congregations.
